

AP Teacher Appreciation

Mr. Daniels, English Teacher

"She's probably the coolest teacher ever, she knows how to keep students entertained while learning. I just really like her vibe."

-Junior, Tina Ho

Mr. Franz, History Teacher

"He takes time to let students talk about what they don't understand, relates to his students. Also his room always smells bomb."

-Sophomore, Jenna Jensen

Mr. Jordal, Social Studies Teacher

"He has a positive and relaxed vibe that is nice to have for an AP class. I get so intrigued, I have considered teaching AP Human or studying Agriculture after high school."

-Sophomore, Jasmine Inthabounh

Mrs. Masteller, English Teacher

"She truly cares about her students and believes in you when you don't believe in yourself."

-Sophomore, Breana Peterson

Jasmine Inthabounh, Co-Features Editor

Ms. Schwenda, Science Teacher

"She's kind and helps even when you're having a hard time, she's really my favorite teacher."

-Sophomore, Jessica Hansen

Teachers are basically undermined super heroes that are always willing to put up a fight. Even on their worst days they are the best people. Sometimes it's nice to receive a little appreciation, that's why May 2 to May 6 is dedicated to recognizing teachers who are dedicated to making us better learners everyday.

often underestimate the obstacles teachers have to face. Teachers spend endless nights grading papers and don't even hesitate to deal with difficult students everyday. Junior, Tina Ho says, "Students take teachers for granted and need to realize how important teachers impact the world." Sometimes students forget that teachers are people too and they go through things just like everyone else.

Mrs. Landrith, English Teacher

"Always willing to help regardless of how much a student may not care about school."

-Junior, Atoi Thiphavong

Teachers have the power to change perspective and mold masterminds, but it's all only worth it, if the student feels like they have gained something significant. It's all about how the teacher carries themselves and whether they truly care about the students' chances of success.

Junior, Cedrick Cavan expresses what kind of teacher helps him succeed and says, "I look for a teacher who is laid back and is willing to engage with the students one-on-one."

Ms. Lambert, Math Teacher

"She always has us do the best and when we get a bad grade, even a B, she always tells us, 'You're better than that', and she makes sure we all do the best we can do."

-Freshman, Staesha Christianson

Personally, what I look for in a teacher is courage and depth. I look for the layers to them, and if they truly have the courage to take risks with whomever they may be teaching.

Teacher Appreciation Week is essential to contemporary society because of how overlooked their job can be. Ho addresses the fact that, "Without teachers, most kids wouldn't care about their education and we need guidance."

Mr. Coleman, History Teacher

"He genuinely cares about my abilities inside and outside of class, he always believes in my classmates and I and he always gives me new challenges, while remaining positive."

-Junior, Cheyann Neades

Senior, Alejandra Villanueva says, "I look for dedication and someone who is willing to help students out whenever help is needed."

Although some may think otherwise, teachers are the building blocks that keep our society growing day to day. As Villanueva, enters the end of her high school career, she realizes how important teachers are and states, "Teachers are definitely significant and they affect students greatly which affects their work and their future. Without teachers, there wouldn't be school and I believe school is important."

English teacher, Mrs. McDonald explains the pros and cons of teaching and says, "It's parenting, but starting over with 175 new kids every year."

When students walk into a classroom, they
