LANDON STARK - "Landon has a twisted and unusual view of ways to explore subject matter. This drawing inspired several of his following works."

GARRETT PETERSON - "Garrett's concentration was tattoos on paper. Often his subject matter explored his political views and commentary on society. He already has an individualistic style of art."

DILLION COX - "Dillion has great ideas. He put his ideas down onto paper. He had a quick, sketchy style. This work was done in colored pencil."

WIEDA'S OPINION: SENIOR ADVANCED-PLACEMENT ART STUDENT PROJECTS

JOEY NIELSEN - "Joey did the most exploration of different media. She often used portraiture for subject matter. This is a picture of the rap singer Drake in conte crayon."

LOGAN HEMPHILL - "Logan is very good at detail and capturing the essence of something. Who else can do faded cardboard? He has the patience to do detail."

BREANNA KIXMILLER - "This metamorphic assignment requires students to change or grow from one subject to another. Breanna grew phenomenally this year as an art student."

LOTS OF POTS - Junior Mariah Stillian examines one of her clay projects in Ceramics 1. Stillian also took Painting 1 this year.

CLOSE DETAIL - Junior Harison Richter works on perfecting his canvas painting. The canvas was too large to fit in the art room so Richter did this painting in the storage closet across the hall from the art room.

SKETCHING A ROUGH DRAFT - Sophomore Hannah Greene sketches out a rough draft of a photographed flower using pencil in her basic art class.

CERAMICS - Junior Luke Frisbie uses wire to shape his clay pot that he is shaping on the wheel during his first period ceramics class. Frisbie was also in Painting 1 this year.

INSTRUCTING THE CLASS - Art teacher Pat Wiederien instructs her basic art students on how to start a project. There were a total of 30 students in Basic Art this year, which all varied in their skills.

AP ART PROJECTS - Senior Logan Hemphill works on his pencil drawing in AP art. Hemphill's future plans are to attend Iowa State University to study elementary education.

ART AT AHS

WHALE SCULPTING - Senior Josie Anzalone consults a book while starting a clay project in Ceramics 1. Anzalone was making a whale fin as part of her "wessel project".

Art plays a major role for students to express their creativity. Those heavily involved in the art program spend hours on various projects ranging from drawing fruit in Basic Art to crafting elaborate designs on clay bowls and figures in Ceramics.

AHS students are offered a large assortment of classes for specific branches of art. Some of the classes offered are Painting, Ceramics, Drawing, Photography and AP Art. Basic art classes are also offered. This year seniors who had already taken Basic Art, Drawing 1 and Drawing 2 came together to form an AP (Advanced Placement) class. According to AP student Dillion Cox, AP Art is a "closed group" that aims to show the artistic talent of AHS in the Hawkeye 10 art show, while they also get college credit for their work.

Highlights of Art

Students work in various art classes and situations

CERAMICS AFTER SCHOOL - Sophomore Lydia Joseph works on smoothing out her clay vase in the art room after school for Ceramics 1 class.

HALLWAY WORK - Senior Jordan Shely works on sketching one of her projects at eye level in the hallway outside of the art room.

SORTING THROUGH THE STACK - Freshman Taylor Andersen sorts through her art projects on the front desk during her 8th period basic art class. Students in art have specific folders with their names on them in which they can store their art. When students want to take a project home to work on it, they roll it up and carry it in a cardboard tube.

LILLIE PAD - A clay sculpture of a flower created by senior Lillie Zablocki in Ceramics 2 sits out after being fired in the kiln.

Senior Kaiya Williams stepped up and got good grades.

Senior Hailey Waters bought a car.

Junior Ashleigh Waltz was proud of Every 15 Minutes because it made her think about every decision.

Senior Lillie Zablocki worked to revive Homecoming.
