

1 King and Queen.
Voted on by the whole school, Grace Reiss (12) and Justin Grawe (12) are crowned Homecoming king and queen. "Being crowned made the week more exciting because I got to be in the parade, and random people came up and congratulated me," Reiss said. Grawe also said it was exciting being treated like royalty. "We got congratulation letters in the mail from local businesses. It was nice to see how the community was supporting us," Grawe said.

3 'Merica Monday.
Rachel Wenger (9) works in English I, wearing America-themed clothes. "Dressing up was so much fun! I can't wait for next year," Wenger said.

2 Decorating Day.
As part of the Homecoming decorating day, Jacy Jacobsen (10), Emma Massman (10), Mary Pederson (10), Zachariah Wedewer (12), Alexander Pegum (12), and Hunter Slaymaker (11) collaborate to decorate teacher Callison Lang's door. A recent tradition during Homecoming week is to decorate teachers' doors to complete the hallway theme. For the afternoon, students were assigned different roles such as, hallway decorating, sidewalk chalk, board painting, and making thank you notes.

Car Bash.
Swinging a sledgehammer JadyN Peyton (9) strikes the side of the car. After coronation, students gathered outside the auto shop and paid a dollar to hit the car.

6 Hollywood Magic.
On Tuesday of Homecoming week, seniors Claire Demmer, Sabrina Welcher, Megan McDonald, Claire Rausch, and Tehya Demmer dress up for Hollywood Magic as "The Benchwarmers." The movie "Benchwarmers" is about three non-athletic guys playing baseball and helping others who aren't the best players be part of a team. Eventually, the team wins the tournament. Other students dressed as characters from various TV shows and movies, such as "Grey's Anatomy," "Riverdale," "Bob the Builder," and "101 Dalmations."

7 Decorating Day.
Freshmen Sophia Manson and Lucille Loeche decorate the hallway with bananas for their Donkey Kong-themed hallway. The hallway themes included Just Dance for the sophomores, Pac-Man for the juniors, and Mario for the seniors. Isaac Fettkether (9) wore an ape costume to school the day of decorating and then incorporated it in the Donkey Kong decorated hallway for Homecoming week.

Workout Wednesday.
All from her closet, Katie Crock (11) dresses up all in neon for Workout Wednesday because she wanted to "throw back to the 80s." Other students also dressed in colorful, fun outfits as part of Homecoming week. "We can all dress up crazy and nobody judges you or questions it," Crock said.

9 Autos Class Preps For Car Bash.
During Autos class, Mitchell Krogmann (10) spray paints the car before the car bash. A record-breaking year for the car bash, the event raised almost $100 dollars, which was put back in the auto's program to purchase new shop supplies.

Homecoming Hoopla

10 'Merica Monday.
On America Monday, Isabelle Willey (11), Rebecca Farmer (10), Ella Koloc (9), Kaleah Carter (11), and Macey Kleitsch (11) all wear the same America-themed leggings without even planning it. Some of the girls purchased the leggings off of Amazon because they knew they could wear them to theme nights for sporting events as well. "My first thought when I saw all of us wearing the same leggings was 'great minds think alike,'" Carter said.

12 Concert Choir Fight Song.
Grace Jolley (9), Lacey Cole (11), Mikaila Neuzil (10), Tamryn Washington (11), Emma Dunkel (11), and Kaylee Osterhaus (10) march through the hall singing the school fight song. Concert Choir students traditionally sing the school fight song as they walk through the hallways during third hour on the Friday of Homecoming week. "I think it is a fun way to get the whole school involved because people came into the hall to watch us sing," Cole said.

11 Decorating Day.
Using her hands to make handprints, Haley Hamm (9) decorates her grade's board. After the boards dried they were put on trucks to be shown in the parade and then displayed at the football game. "When the whole school got together and celebrated Homecoming week, I think it really brought the school together," Hamm said.

13 Hollywood Magic.
Freshmen Makayla Gasper and Emily Prier dress up as characters from the movie "It" during Homecoming week for Squad Day. "We loved the movie, and we had everything we needed in our closet so we decided why not?" Gasper said. Some other students dressed as famous dynamic duos like Thing One and Thing Two, the three blind mice, and M&M's.
