

1. Working at the Car Wash At the drama club car wash over the summer, Joelle Trasowech ('20), Lily Jewell ('22) and Andrew Park ('21) wipe down a newly washed car. The drama club held a car wash every summer as a way to fundraise before the new school year. "The car wash is what makes me excited for a new year because it's the first time I get to see all of the new and old faces before school starts," Park said. (S. Holtam)

2. Huddle Up Over the summer, the Blue Illusion dancers prepare as a group before a performance. The dancers participated in summer camp to learn choreography for the season and spotlight their skills. "At camp we learn dances that we perform at football games. It's our first chance to dance as a team, and we all get closer," varsity dancer Alyssa Migiel ('21) said. (Contributed by L. Tanner)

This is our Summer!

"At Central, you always have someone who will listen to you if you need to talk or will help you if you have a problem. That goes for students and staff."

-Maci Hagen ('20)

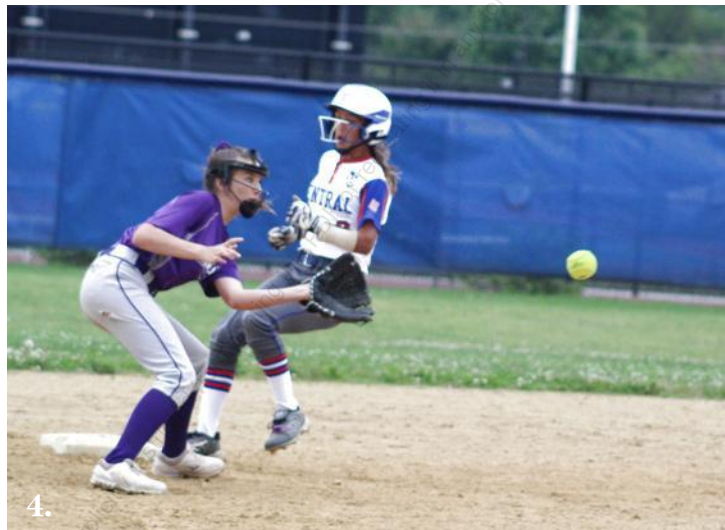

As summer came around again, students' schedules quickly became empty from their normal school-related activities, but that did not stop them from keeping busy over the summer. Many athletes kept up with their sports by working out to prepare themselves for their upcoming seasons. Baseball and softball players filled their time with practices and games at Brady Street Stadium. Some students also used their free time as an opportunity to work towards getting a license by participating in Driver's Ed., but they enjoyed a break from work and time for play by spending their long summer hours going out with friends, visiting new hot spots in the area and not having to do any homework. Whatever the Blue Devils spent their time doing over June, July and August, they were sure to make their summer one for the books. (S. Holtam)

3. "Somebody Told a Lie" At a summer camp practice, show choir members show off their dance skills and dramatic faces. Show choir performers dedicated a full week to camp in the summer to learn the season's choreography. "I joined show choir because it's a unique school activity. It may not be a sport, but we work like it is," Jaden Readus ('20) said. (J. Chavez)

4. Safe! At a home softball game against Burlington, Merin Crowder ('23) rushes to the base. Crowder played as an incoming freshman on the varsity softball team. "I was really nervous but excited," she said about joining the varsity team. (S. Holtam)

5. Ready, Set, Bat In a game against Burlington, Jake Posten ('22) prepares to bat. The baseball players felt confident after their overall winning season. "Playing all season and winning most games, only losing two, was pretty cool. As we finished the season, I got to play with the sophomores. We had to split our game against Assumption, which was fun," Posten said. (S. Holtam)
