Being the difference, seeing the difference through eyes with 2020 vision in the future

The first day of high school for the Class of 2020... we remember it vividly. All of us had our friends help us pick out outfits for the first day to make sure we looked our best, then went to bed anxiously awaiting our first day. Waking up to our alarms or our parents' jostling us that morning and then getting up, we made sure our hair looked perfect, we threw on our clothes and shoes and headed out the door excited and scared to see what the next four years here would hold for us. For the first few weeks, we wandered all over the school just trying to find our way around the maze of the building. As we approached the new decade, and with it, the end of high school, we can now begin to see the difference that our generation can, and will make. We have all grown up into responsible adults, and I think I can speak for most of us and say, "I am excited to see what our futures hold."

Dressed for success, senior Tommy Le models the official cap and gown on Thursday, December 19, that the Class of 2020 will wear for their graduation ceremonies scheduled for Sunday, June 7. "Wearing the cap and gown was a pretty good and rewarding feeling. It might be the end of high school, but it is only the beginning of my life. I will be attending The University of Iowa to earn a major in Medical Study and a minor in Biology, all the while pursuing my military career. I wish good luck to the Class of 2020 and their futures," said Le.
