

OUR PATH TOWARDS CREATING THIS BOOK

As everyone knows, last year was a very unusual year. With the school year ending abruptly, the 2020 Javelin was left unfinished for many months. As the new lead editors, we met during the summer, via Zoom, to start planning the upcoming yearbook's theme, colors, and graphics.

Once the new school year began, we continued to plan the details for the new book while our team relentlessly worked on pages from the previous book. We encountered many challenges with trying to finish one book while starting another; however, it never affected the yearbook team's work ethic or the quality of the pages they completed.

With that being said, the theme we chose for the 2021 Javelin represents what happens next. Coming out of a worldwide pandemic, we wanted to focus on our path going forward and all the good that's still to come. This book tells the story of what happened in the wake of quarantine and how we all made changes to our daily lives so that we could still come to school, learn, participate in extracurriculars, and try to return to normal everyday activities.

As you flip through these pages, you'll notice it's unlike any other book. Masked faces and mitigation strategies appear on every spread: this was the reality of the 2020-21 school year. But we found a path through it, and most importantly, we found a path forward.

We hope you appreciate all our hard work and that some day you will enjoy looking back at this unique time in your life.

P
A T
H

O
U
R

OPENING SPREAD BY CAROLINE PELLETT

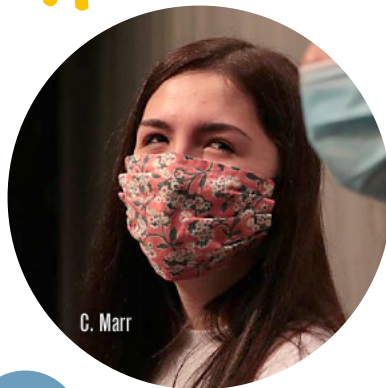

Customer is allowed to have objects outside of the margin.

TRIM LINE

TRIM LINE

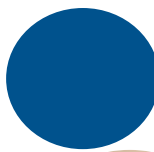

FORWARD

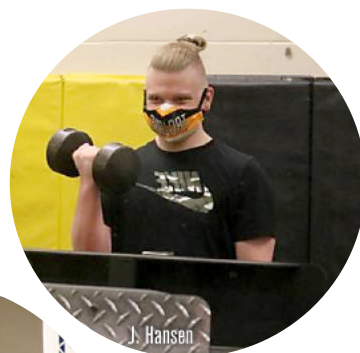

C. Marr

J. Fulk

J. Ford

J. Hansen

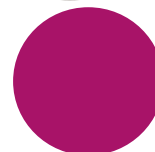

P. Brock

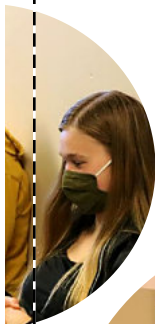

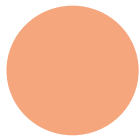

D. Freund

A. Welsh

I. Hart

L. Muell

Javelin 2021 yearbook lead editors

Kennedy A. Maergen
Shayla Luke
Cacoline Pellett

