

SPRING BREAK And Instagram

Many Pella High students traveled over spring break this year, which was from March 15 through 19. Many of these student tourists posted their trips on Instagram and other social media platforms.

"I made a post about my spring break because it was full of wonderful memories. The boys and I took over Florida, figuratively and literally," said senior Silas Vanderhoff. "Whenever the group would head down to the beach parties at night, everyone knew who we were...I wouldn't trade it for the world."

Many people post on social media to be able to look back on their favorite memories.

"I posted about my spring break on social media because I think it will be fun to look back on my posts when I am older and remember the good time I had made as a teenager," said senior Faith Diers.

Diers also thinks Instagram is a great way to see where friends went for Spring Break.

"I like to see other people's posts because it gives you something to talk with them about or you see some of their interests," said freshman Lauryn Doschadis.

While most people couldn't decide whose spring break trip was the most interesting, Vanderhoff thought that he and his friends had the most entertainment. However, Vanderhoff still enjoyed seeing friend's vacation stories.

"I like seeing other people's spring break posts because it shows they had a great time, even though it could never compare to the boys' spring break," said Vanderhoff.
