

MEET CHARLIE DUFFY

Charlie Duffy is a very involved member of the West High community. Throughout his high school career, he has participated in cross country, band, choir and theater. Despite this busy schedule, he keeps a strong sense of humor.

His self-proclaimed only hobby is "getting buckets, both metaphorically and physically." His sense of humor and ability to laugh things off is evident when recalling his favorite West High memory. "[One] time a faculty member rear-ended me in the front lot and then acted like nothing happened," Duffy said. Despite his quick wit, Duffy has a love for drama, too, shown by his involvement in Theatre West and SPIT. "I like Theatre West because it is such a tight knit and extremely talented yet welcoming community in which I feel very comfortable just being myself," Duffy said.

MEET AMY CRESPO

In the echoing band room, Amy Crespo can be found playing the trumpet. "I enjoy playing the trumpet because I like learning new things, and this is just one of the things I have enjoyed since fifth grade," Crespo said.

The brass instrument has accompanied Crespo through high school and taught her valuable lessons. "Playing the trumpet taught me the importance of practice because you will never be good at something if you don't practice and put in time and effort to make it right," Crespo said.

Her hard work paid off, as she received a musical scholarship for the trumpet. She did not spend all her time in the band room, however, as her favorite memories are with her friends at football games. Her favorite thing about West is the bond she's made with teachers and friends.
