Anna Werner (12)

"When I found out that I had made All-State, I was really excited! Music has been something really important to me all of my life, and I'm really thankful for the opportunity to be able to sing and share music, especially during the pandemic."
 Taylor Hammer, 12

"I was baby sitting when I found out. I looked at my phone an hour after results and I saw an e-mail about All-State! I didn't believe it, and I started crying. My baby sitting kid actually asked what was wrong. I called my parents and friends and then texted Duane (Phligreen)! I was so happy and grateful!"
 Laney Robinson, 11

Music Takes a Turn

Due to COVID-19, the marching band was unable to participate in any competitions.

"I did miss invitations, but overall I have been extremely thankful for our opportunity to play together and to play for home football games."

Grace Johnson, 12

"Honestly, I thought it was a nice change of pace from the usual stressing and worrying about if I'm going to mess up."

Travis Limkemann, 11

"I was honestly relieved. I enjoy playing the music that's given to us, but marching is usually hard and stressful."

Sydney Lorang, 10

During pre-game, Kody Tran (9), Jacob Hosch (12), Mikaila Neuzil (12) and Kole Wright (11) play the fight song and the national anthem with the West Delaware Pride Marching Band before kick off.

Performance Perfection

Despite competition cancellations, Brendon Morales (12) continues to work toward a competition-ready performance for the home crowd.

Costume Changes

Working on a visually appealing show, Riley Isaacs (10) improves her flagging skills during rehearsal to make up for the lack of costuming in the marching show.

Duet Prepares for Tomorrow

Rehearsing their duet before a Friday night performance, Riley Cook (11) and Jacob Hosch (12) play "Yesterday" by the Beatles.

Flag Focus

Focused on the color guard choreography, Harper Blommers (10) practices twirling her flag for each song in the marching show, "The Beatles."
