SUNRISE

Ahead I see

A mountain so long

I must climb atop

To please the ones

Who raised me

Flowers; so glorious!

With colors that grace trace of the oceans

From trees that spring fruits

And clouds so light in the sky

But it's on the other side

For now I'm struggling

To reach the top

For now, dark skies

And winds that whisper

Like the weary

Winds, softly, the first new thing I see.

I see the blue bulbs, down below

And bubble gum clouds above

The light cast from the rising sun

Sets me at ease

I let go of behind

As I begin to fly

The winds catch my hair

Push me up in the sky

And I float up with the sun

In all its bright pleasing glory.
