

STUDENT LIFE

SYNERGY LIKE NO OTHER

The start of the school year was an unusual one, but the student body didn't let this stop them. They still created many meaningful memories and found safe ways to have a productive and successful year. Keeping traditions alive, juniors and seniors got away from their computers to watch their favorite school events in masks. "Being able to be back in the student section supporting our Trojans is the best feeling. Everyone always has high energy, making the game super fun and exciting," said senior Emma Smigel. When they weren't supporting their peers on the field, students were connecting with one another in different ways as well, such as video chatting with friends and socially distanced hangouts. This year, the Trojans have left their mark on the school by showing their unwavering support for their peers and faculty and have proven to be creative, unique and willing to go the extra mile to stay a strong united force. The Trojans show that they have synergy like no other. By Nicole Trout

FLYING HIGH

Senior student section members Kaitlin Lamkins, Emma Furlong, Schuyler Houston, Sean Harken and Emma Smigel lead the traditional flour toss after the opening kickoff for the West vs. City playoff game Oct. 23. The Trojans moved on to the third round of playoffs winning 35-7. Photo by Alyssa Skala