Tata for now!

by junior Jetta Colsch

As you take your first step inside tata yaya (yes, it's supposed to not be capitalized!), a quaint, little shop on Main Street in Cedar Falls, it feels like you're walking into an Instagram influencer's profile page.

A crêpe is a thin pancake that originated in northern France. Today it is considered its national dish.

The walls are covered in books and the ceiling with pages from inside them. Taking a seat, you can't help but drool at the sight of delectable, golden-brown crepes, waffles, and pancakes covered in toppings ranging from appetizing apples to succulent spinach as you wait for your turn to indulge in their mouth-watering beauty.

Opening the twine-tied menu, you see what looks more like a playlist, featuring dishes titled after some of your favorite songs: "Under the Sea," "Welcome to the Jungle," and "Eye of the Tiger."

"Endless Love" is one of their sweet crêpes. It is filled with cinnamon, apple, and honey. You'll love it!

What you don't recognize, though, is the unique flavor combinations on both the sweet and savory parts of the pages. Everything. Looks. Delicious.

For prices, similar to those of IHOP, you can have a gorgeous homestyle crêpe topped with mostly fresh ingredients.

This eatery is closed through March 31 due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Follow them on Facebook for up-to-date info.

Whether you're in the mood for a $6 snack or a $10 dinner, there's a variety of delicious food and adorable ambiance makes tata yaya a perfect lunch stop on girls' day or dessert stop on date night.

There's no better place to go to get a little taste of Paris!
