OLYMPIC DREAMS

Many people dream of competing at the division one level, but for Madeline Fincham, this dream became reality through rowing. Fincham began rowing in eighth grade. Her early rowing career was spent in Iowa City at the Hawkeye Community Rowing Club. However, she didn't take it seriously until she went to a month-long camp in California the summer before her junior year. Upon returning to Iowa City, Fincham decided to change teams and join the YMCA Quad Cities Rowing Program. "I knew with the goals that I had for myself, that team was a better fit for me," Fincham said. Soon after, Fincham furthered her dedication to the sport and began driving to the Quad Cities twice a day for practices, leaving as early as four in the morning and again in the afternoon for evening practices. Fincham has accomplished numerous goals, including traveling to Boston for nationals and competing with people from around the world. She plans to continue her rowing career after graduation at the University of Minnesota. "[I look forward to] meeting new people and being around people with the same goals and interests as me," Fincham said. Fincham believes that rowing has been great for her and can benefit other people looking to find a unique sport. "I think rowing is a really unique sport compared to other sports as it isn't well known. I feel like going to a rowing race is a special feeling that you don't get at football games and basketball games and all the regular sports," Fincham said.

"I knew from the goals that I had for myself, that team was a better fit for me."
