King of the Court

Sriram Sugumaran, member of class of 2017, is an inductee of National Honor Society, has impeccable grades in rigorous courses, and has completed 150 hours of service at the University of Iowa hospital and 50 volunteer hours at Ronald McDonald house. He is also very musically gifted: he's played bass guitar for three years, bass drum for four years, double bass for seven years, and piano for eight years.

But Sriram is given the most recognition for his outstanding tennis skills. He ranks #2 in the state and qualifies in the top 25 in the Midwest. Sriram has already received numerous letters of interest for his remarkable athletic ability and skills, including one from the prestigious Johns Hopkins University.

Sriram's coach Randy Brockhage talked to QC Times about his most recent work in 2015 tennis season. "Sri has only lost four games altogether, while winning 74 games thus far this season. He has done a lot in terms of preparation during the off-season and is at the top of his game."

He plans to keep tennis in the picture and play on the team of the university of his choice, where he plans to pursue a career in cardiology.
