

FOREVER THERE. “He was my rock, my anchor and knowing his signature is always with me will keep him very dear to me. When I’m down and don’t know where to turn, I’ll look at my wrist and keep going, for him.” Carolina Villavicencio (’16) said in regards to the tattoo of her brother Francisco’s name.

How to...

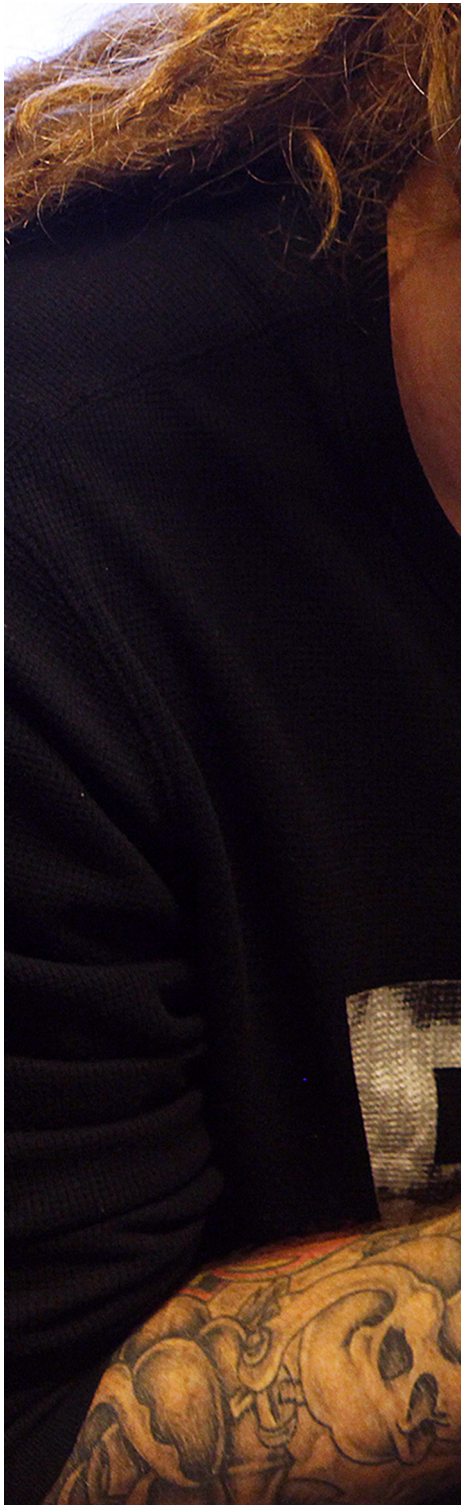

Henna

Using only a picture on her phone to illustrate the temporary design on a classmate’s hand, Olivia Mickey (’16) painted henna onto the hand of Katie Dozezal (’17), yet another happy customer of Mickey’s unique talent.

“Your body is like a canvas, and I believe that you should make art. Plus, it’s temporary so you can constantly create new things,” Mickey said.

SWIRLING STEPS. After searching for inspiration (step 1), Oliva Mickey (’16) applies the henna (step 2), lets it dry (step 3) and washes it off (step 4) to reveal her creations.

INSPIRING INK. Sitting patiently while enduring the pain of a needle, Ethan Smith ('16) made it a mission to receive a tattoo of a quote that says, "Every saint has a past, and every sinner has a future." This is Smith's second tattoo of possibly many more to come. Though it takes a lot of guts to sit through the pain, Smith didn't mind it. "It was quite painful, but definitely worth it," Smith said. Photo by Emily Barth

BOD MODS

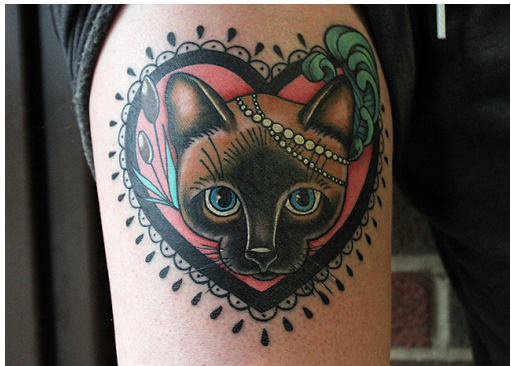

FOREVER REMEMBERED. In memory of her brother, Carolina Villavicencio ('16) got a tattoo of his name on her forearm. Photo by Madison See

EXPRESSION. Demonstrating all of the unique ways to wear jewelry is Brittney Howe ('16). "I get them to stand out a little bit, they make me who I am and its a great way to express yourself," Howe said. Photo by Madison See

CAT TAT. Expressing her love for cats through body art is Autumn Saul ('16). Photo by Madison See

WISE OLD OWL. Showing pride in the pretty tatoo on her hand is Hannah Flack ('16). "I was kind of debating for my first tattoo- what I should get, and I just decided to go with the owl on my hand," Flack said. "I really like owls, they're like my favorite animal; I think they're really pretty." Photo by Madison See
