Don't try to fit in when you were

We were all determined to stand true to ourselves in our own individual ways. When people dyed their hair, they went with the usual colors: brown, black, or maybe even a streak of blue or gold; however, Andrea Templeton 15 went against the norm seen in the hallways. Instead, she proudly decided on purple. Another student not afraid to be different was Austin Earnest 14 when he wore a suit jacket instead of casual business attire to give his presentation in Jacob Halter's Senior English class. Morgan Johnson 15 broke tradition and spent her holiday break with those who were less fortunate. She served food at the Mission of Hope and Crossroads Organizations. We did not judge others for not having the same thoughts or personalities as ourselves; we embraced it. We let every person stand up to show his or her own identity, and by standing together, we stood out.
