What is your ideal job?

"Special education teacher. I decided this in my eighth grade career class. I think it would be good for me because I am good with kids." -Briann Brown 17

"Engineering or manufacturing. I enjoyed taking my Intro to Tech class and plan on taking other shop classes." -Dakota Bishop 16

"Journalism. It lets me write about what matters to me and my personal views on different things." -Cherie Morse 15

Colorful Crafts.
For her first year at Early Beginnings, Kayla Wilson-Becker 14 works on arts and crafts with the five to seven year olds.

Cleaning Craze.
It is a normal routine for Dakota Franzenburg 14 to sanitize things at Hollywood Tan. "We are always cleaning," Dakota said, "whether it's the beds, floors or even the baseboards."

Seal A Seam. Since Blake DeRycke 14 was 12 years old, he has helped out at his parents' business, D&S Sheetmetal. "My dad taught me how to weld, but he would not let me weld until my freshman year," Blake said. "I sometimes make deliveries, pick up different parts or even go on a few job sites."

Helpful Hand. "What looks like a great job can actually be a challenge," Sydnee Eastwood 17 said. "You get pokey thorns in your hands. Some pumpkins are really heavy, so it is the worst when the stem breaks off and you are helping a customer." [photo] Kelsey Garin

People Person. It's easy to find a smile at Newhall First Stop when Carisa Meyer 15 works. "I like the small town atmosphere and my bosses. Ice cream is probably one of my favorite things to make," Carisa said. "This is a good job for me since I am a people person and like to interact with customers." [photo] Morgan Johnson

Billygoat Benefit. Lance Dvorak 14 raises eight Boar goats. Lance said, "I bought them from a guy in southern Iowa who breeds goats. I have seven nannies now and only one billy goat. They [goats] usually have two to three kids every year, and we sell them when they get to about 50 lbs." [photo] Kelsey Garin

Oily Occupation. Jiffy Lube is the perfect place for Kane Adcock 15 to work. "I have worked here for three or four months now," Kane said. "I really enjoy it. It was easy for me to start working here because my dad taught me some of the basic vehicle procedures I need to know." [photo] Kelsey Garin

Milk Madness. R&A Schanbacher farm is where Michaela Hofmaster 15 and Burgandy Frese 15 spend some of their time when they are not at school. "I usually help milk the cows or feed the baby calves," Michaela said. "It is an easy job to do, and I am able to work whenever I want." [photo] Kelsey Garin

Students found that a job could be advantageous for several reasons.

"I like working at DJ's in Norway because it is a small town community which means everybody knows each other, and we all work well together - as a team," Sylvia Emmanuel 14 said.

That meant for Sylvia and her co-workers, their work day went much faster than it would have otherwise.

For Heith Hinds 14, it allowed him to meet new people who later became his peers.

"I work with many kids from school," Heith said. Since he didn't know anyone, "it made it a lot easier to come to school here."

Others figured out if they car-pooled, then they saved money.

"Emily [Skow 14] usually takes Mataya [Hammes 17] and I to work if we are scheduled to work the same hours," Kristen Skow 17 said.

Another advantage was classmates became better friends when they worked the same job.

Becca Kimm 15 said, "I work with Macy [Miner 15] and Hailey [Myers 15]. We have grown closer as friends, and we always have a great time."
