flying into M*A*S*H.

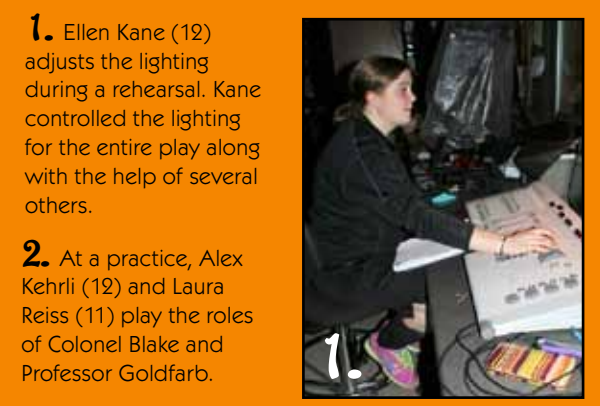

This year's play, M*A*S*H, was a little different than most. Along with a bigger cast than usual, the cast also had a bigger purpose than normal. Proceeds from the sale of playing cards were donated to help send a veteran on an Honor Flight.

The playing cards were printed with images of the cast and crew. The Honor Flight program sends a veteran to Washington, D.C., for one day. The veteran then spends the day visiting memorials. The veteran who receives the honor to go on the flight will be randomly selected from the Manchester area. A $5 profit was made off of each deck of cards, which sold for $10.

"Since M*A*S*H took place in the Korean War, this year's play had a big meaning," said play director Tina Ostrander.

"It was definitely an interesting experience wearing a dress."
