

Daniel Thaelke ponders a math problem during study hall.

Janie Magner working on an online class in the Counseling Center.

Giovanni Orzes creates a song in Music Tech. class.

Shawn Hemmingsen waters the Gerbera daisies in Spring Horticulture.

Our Knowledge: One Education

Study hall can be used for a number of things: catching up on past assignments, relaxing, finishing up homework, and of course studying. But for some students, they use study hall time to tutor another student. Senior Kayla Inman, utilizes the library conference room to tutor 7th grade student Trace McCuen in math..

1. Codi Gollobit details a car as part of his Work Skills class.
2. Like senior Adam Steffes, many music students take their homework to the band or choir room during study hall.
3. Skilled in many instruments, Karl Segerborg plays the piano in Music Tech class.
4. Shiana Irlbeck focusing all her energy to study for a Biology test.
5. Ryan Petersen working on a Powerpoint during study hall in the LMC.
6. Susie Bylund toils away at homework in the Counseling Center while listening to music.

Mark Rix investigates some of the cabbage plants in Vocational Ag. class.

Larry Rix using the arc welder in Metals and Welding class. This year the students created safety welding videos for group projects.

Lucas Smith-Petersen sweeps the floor in the greenhouse during Spring Horticulture class.

TRIM LINE

TRIM LINE

Customer is allowed to have objects outside of the margin.

7. Alese Denny working on an Ag. class assignment. 8. Lauren Kjergaard and Kenedee Turner use spray cheese and crackers to simulate welding. 9. Brianna Schwab and Madison Lawson have fun with the mud after a soil lab. 10. Dylan Lewis grinding down some metal for his project. 11. Caylee Olson, Tyson Hines, and Cody Bruch test soil samples. 12. Andrew Malloy waters flowers in the greenhouse.

